All: It's now time, like never before, to send in your comments of support for National Monuments lands including Marine Monuments and Sanctuaries. The current administration through the U.S. Dept. of Interior (Sec. of Interior Ryan Zinke) is holding public comment periods; one that ends this coming July 10 (THIS MONDAY!; see below) for review of National Monuments designated or expanded since 1996. Another public comment period is open until July 26 for review of Nat'l Marine Sanctuaries and Monuments (see below). This is a dark time for environmental protections and restoration programs; no further need here to say more on that because you are all aware. However, you may not be aware of specific actions in play. Here are a couple being considered via U.S. Dept. of Interior (below). So, take heed and let your voice be heard now!

BTW, Sec. Zinke has an Instagram account @RepRyanZinke where he displays the majestic beauty of Montana landscapes (his home). If you have Instagram, contact Zinke directly and "like" his photos of Montana and express your desire for their protection and for the Interior Dept. to do likewise for other Nat'l parks, monuments, and sanctuaries.
